All year long Santa Claus has been busy getting the Presents ready for Christmas Eve.

Finally after months of planning, the busiest night of Santa's year is here.

The Elves have finished making all the toys and every single Present is wrapped and waiting in Santa's sack.

The Reindeer have all been fed and they are excited to start their journey around the world.

But something is not right.

Rudolph has the flu and his nose has stopped glowing.

Santa Claus had a problem.

“Who is going to lead the sleigh and guide the reindeer on this dark Christmas Eve night?” asked Santa.

“Woof! Woof!”
Santa’s trusty dog Snowy was sure he could lead the way.

The elves’ magic dust could make him fly but Snowy’s nose did not glow.

“But Snowy how are you going to light the way for the Reindeer without a glowing nose?” asked Santa.

Snowy had an idea.

He ran inside the workshop and climbed into the box of old Christmas decorations. When he found what he was looking for he barked with glee.

“Woof! Woof!”

When Snowy came running back to the sleigh Santa was surprised to see that Snowy was glowing as bright as a Christmas Tree.

“Ho ho ho, Snowy you have found the battery-operated Christmas tree Lights,” said Santa.

“You have saved Christmas for everyone Snowy,” shouted the Elves.

While Rudolph rested Snowy led Santa's sleigh into the starry night sky and when the little boys and girls awoke on Christmas morning they all found a new ornament on their Christmas Tree.

Can you guess what it was? Snowy the Christmas dog.
